WINTER 2007-2008

A Heartfelt Thanks From Our Sister Hospice

To the colleagues and friends of Elizabeth and Karen

To all of you who made their trip to Africa happen

We thank you so much and a thousand times over

We were honored to meet them they gave us such pleasure.

You sent them with love and good wishes and with those they came

With loving hearts full of compassion which will remain

Their sweet presence here exploded the hearts of all they met

They left behind a cornucopia of memories we will never forget.

As Thanksgiving nears on your land far away

We wish each of you a Blessed Day

We will give thanks for you who made this trip happen

The loving circle of friends of Elizabeth and Karen.

—With love from Joan Williams, Director of Fundraising and Marketing, Brits-Hartbeespoort Hospice, South Africa

Hospice of the Chesapeake received this letter about Karen Frank and Elizabeth Liechty who recently returned from their visit to Brits-Hartbeespoort Hospice during their trip to South Africa.

Joan Williams of Brits Hospice with Hospice of the Chesapeake representatives Karen Frank and Elizabeth Liechty.

Loving Hearts, Caring Faces

What brought me to Hospice of the Chesapeake is what brought me to nursing – the “Caring Theory” by Jean Watson, Ph.D., R.N. Her theory was to “bring back the heart to nursing care,” creating a healing environment at all levels both physically and non-physically. This theory calls for a subtle environment whereby wholeness, beauty, comfort, dignity and peace can reach their potential. The compassion of human caring comes not only from nurses, but also from all of the members of Hospice of the Chesapeake.

During the opening ceremony at Wabanaki, the adult bereavement retreat, participants light a candle in memory of their loved one. Lori Batdorf is seen here lighting a votive in memory of her daughter, Megan.

This care is a vital part of the complete picture. This picture can only be completed when we all work together and represent the balance, respect and caring of the patients and their families.

At the core of these connecting pieces of the puzzle is the knowledge that all life deserves great respect. This respect is present while building the puzzle as a multi-disciplinary team through sharing talents, skills and compassion, or by balancing support to the community, patients and families. It builds our reputation as an organization, which makes us all proud to be part of that family. It is also evident with one thank you, where all of those that have touched a patient and their family in ways that bring hope, peace and love back into their hearts. It is the full circle, the completed puzzle. I thank you all for what you do.

— Lori Batdorf, RN

One of the most powerful reminders of why I work for Hospice of the Chesapeake comes to me when I stand at the closing ceremonies of Camp Nabi, Phoenix Rising and the Wabanaki Retreat. When I look around the circle into the eyes of the volunteers that have lovingly embraced the participants all weekend, I see genuine care and compassion. I watch the volunteers enter Arlington Echo, the venue of the weekend bereavement retreats, with joy, anticipation and maybe a bit of trepidation. After settling in and shedding the accoutrements of their other lives, the volunteers prepare to do the heart-centered work required of them.

from the helm

Words cannot express my appreciation to everyone at Hospice of the Chesapeake for all you did for my Dad during the last months of his life. I am grateful to everyone for showing Dad the respect and dignity he so deserved.

The comments above, received recently by a hospice family, are testimony to the dedication of our staff and volunteers, who will serve a record number of patients and families in 2007. Hospice of the Chesapeake is organizing for greater service and further growth to the communities we serve. Soon after the New Year, we will be re-opening and dedicating the Betty Jane & Creston G. Tate Foundation Chesapeake Hospice House in Linthicum, thanks to the generosity of Jim & Linda Humphrey, Creston & Betty Jane Tate, and our wonderful community of supporters. The expanded and remodeled hospice residence will accommodate eight patients and families, with additional space for reflection and quiet.

Patients, families, clients and referral sources will find it even easier to contact our staff with our enhanced and expanded telephone response system. Urgent telephone calls, referrals and the customary calls to Hospice of the Chesapeake will be routed more efficiently, adding to our capability to provide the highest quality of support to those that we serve. We anticipate having the enhanced answering and routing capability fully in place by January 2008. Hospice of the Chesapeake has a well-earned reputation for the finest patient care, family support and spiritual and bereavement care. Our patient care teams and increased response efforts will enable us to continue to meet the needs of all who call upon us.

The goal of Hospice of the Chesapeake has been, and will continue to be, maintaining our covenant of commitment and service. With the assistance of our supporters and contributors, upholding this covenant will be guaranteed.

Sincerely,

Erwin E. Abrams
President & CEO

P.S. Hospice of the Chesapeake's partnership with Brits-Hartbeespoort Hospice in South Africa is a source of pride to us. This staff and volunteer supported effort was enhanced by a November visit from Karen Frank of our Spiritual & Bereavement Care Center and volunteer Elizabeth Liechty.

Home Is Where The Heart Is — First Hospice House Undergoes Expansion and Renovation

At the time of its opening in 1996, the Betty Jane & Creston G. Tate Foundation Chesapeake Hospice House was the first hospice residential facility in Maryland. Since its first day of operations, the Tate Chesapeake Hospice House has provided a unique, home-like setting and atmosphere for individuals facing life-limiting illnesses who live alone, have no caregivers to assist them in day-to-day activities, or need complex and concentrated care.

The Tate Chesapeake Hospice House is undergoing renovation and expansion to bring the home to a new standard of excellence, through the contribution of benefactors Jim and Linda Humphrey. The expansion will produce an extra 2,836 square feet of living space and decking. It will include the addition of two new patient rooms, great room, meditation room, conference room, staff office, laundry utility room, and restrooms. The interior of the existing building will be renovated so the house will be a state-of-the-art hospice residence.

Through the generosity and major gift of Betty Jane & Creston G. Tate, Hospice of the Chesapeake is able to provide new furnishings and decorations to the Tate Chesapeake Hospice House through the talents and creativity of Beth Kurrle, owner of By Design₂, an interior design firm located in Millersville. Ruhf + Plitt, Architects, LTD., of Annapolis, designed the addition to the Tate Chesapeake Hospice House to complement and strengthen the existing structure, add ease of patient access for the staff, and to provide a serene and relaxing setting.

Architectural rendering of the finished wing of the Betty Jane & Creston G. Tate Foundation Chesapeake Hospice House.

“The generosity and commitment of Jim and Linda Humphrey and the additional assistance from Betty Jane and Creston G. Tate give meaning to the concept of caring for one’s fellow human beings,” stated Hospice of the Chesapeake’s President and CEO Erwin Abrams.

“Non-profit community-based hospices, like ours, depend on the continued kindness of our supporters – those who give willingly with no thought of financial return. They indeed are rewarded and Hospice of the Chesapeake is immeasurably enriched.” The renovations to the house should be completed by January 2008.

Those wishing to donate to the hospice house re-stocking effort may send monetary contributions to Hospice of the Chesapeake, 445 Defense Highway, Annapolis, MD 21401, attention Tate Chesapeake Hospice House.

There is also a gift registry at www.bedbathandbeyond.com for those wishing to donate linens or household items. Please ask for your gift to be sent to the Annapolis office to Jeanne Malicki’s attention. Include your name and address with your gift so we can acknowledge the gift accordingly.

Betty Asplund, the founder of Camp Nabi in 1992, said the only requirement necessary to be a camp volunteer is two ears and one heart. These volunteers are a diverse, talented group representing many professions and life interests, yet for each weekend they are there solely to minister to others.

For the past eight years at 15 camps and retreats, I have experienced kindness without exception from some of the finest individuals I have ever met. I have also witnessed the transformative power of being willing to hold another's pain, however briefly. A volunteer from the 2007 summer camps described their commitment saying, "I like that I was part of a very awesome, giving, loving spiritual group of people. I feel a part of something bigger. I look forward to seeing all my friends and family who come back every year to be a part of this life-changing weekend."

These are the faces of caring in my world and this is why I work for Hospice of the Chesapeake.

John & Arloine Mandrin Chesapeake Hospice House Receives CADA Art Donation

Capital Area Decorative Artisans (CADA) donated 10 paintings to the John & Arloine Mandrin Chesapeake Hospice House last summer. The donated paintings were created on 3' x 4' canvases and were designed to hang in the house's eight patient bedrooms and as a large mural for the great room.

Every year, CADA chooses a different community service project to lend their expertise, talent, and vision. This year, the group chose to focus on Hospice of the Chesapeake, as requested by CADA Co-Chair Melanie Kershner. Melanie requested that the community service project go towards Hospice of the Chesapeake because she had a sister who received hospice care in Buffalo, New York.

Joining Melanie to hang the paintings at the Mandrin House were fellow Co-Chair Linda O'Neill and CADA President Mary Steingesser. Linda shared that participating in the project had given her an intrinsically good feeling, and Capital Area Decorative Artisans members Linda O'Neill and Melanie Kershner hang donated artwork at the John & Arloine Mandrin Chesapeake Hospice House.

Mary loved working with the Mandrin Chesapeake Hospice House staff. She was awed by their passion for their work.

As much as Hospice of the Chesapeake appreciates the donated artwork, the contributing artists of CADA also grew through the experience. Contributing artist Irving Singman summed up her experience by stating, "I never had the opportunity to give of myself in such a rewarding way – being able to use my God given gift (art), to assist in the beautification of the Hospice House."

In addition to donating 10 pieces of breath-taking artwork, a group of CADA artists have placed small stars on the ceilings of the patient bedrooms at the Mandrin Chesapeake Hospice House using a special kind of phosphorescent paint. Now, even though our patients may not be able to lie outside beneath the stars, they can enjoy a beautiful starry sky in the comfort of their own beds.

For more information about the John & Arloine Mandrin Chesapeake Hospice House, please contact Ann Marie Pessagno at 410.798.0791 or ampessagno@hospicechesapeake.org.

Innovations for the Spiritual & Bereavement Care Center's Philanthropy

Hospice of the Chesapeake is well-known for providing a diverse range of bereavement support and education services to the community, such as one-on-one counseling, support groups for children, adolescents and adults, bereavement retreats, remembrance services, and holiday seminars.

Since these services are often offered regardless of ability to pay, Hospice of the Chesapeake's Spiritual & Bereavement Care Center (SBCC) has embarked on an innovative path to increase funding for essential and unique services. SBCC has initiated a cause marketing program to supplement revenue by linking with partners who share profits in the sale of their merchandise.

Swan Images (Ernie and Mary Swanson) produces Hope Full Note Cards and Deborah Bluestein produces a line of silver jewelry specifically hand-crafted for Hospice of the Chesapeake. The SBCC received a generous gift for the purchase of a display case for the Hope Full Note Cards, silver jewelry and Beads for Brits.

In addition, volunteers and participants of the bereavement retreats, Camp Nabi, Phoenix Rising, Wabanaki, continue to create Beads for Brits bracelets. One-hundred percent of the financial proceeds are sent to our sister hospice, Brits-Hartbeespoort Hospice in

Sub-Saharan Africa, to fund food and supplies. Andrea Lichtenstein, owner of Ridgely Retreat, also continues to offer monthly Nia for Healing sessions at a reduced price to honor the philosophy 'through movement we find health.'

Through continued fundraising efforts, partnerships and program offerings, Hospice of the Chesapeake's Spiritual & Bereavement Care Center stays committed to providing exceptional care for its patients and families.

For more information, please call Hospice of the Chesapeake's Spiritual & Bereavement Care Center at 410.987.2129.

First-Ever SoulCollage® Training on the East Coast

Hospice of the Chesapeake's Bereavement Coordinator Roberta Rook, LCPC, is a facilitator for the innovative counseling and healing program, SoulCollage®. SoulCollage® is an interactive and dynamic process, to explore aspects of the self, the roles a person has in life, relationships with others living and deceased, and the spiritual imagery one uses to derive meaning from life experience.

During SoulCollage® participants create a deck of collaged cards from "found" images, taken from magazines, calendars, books, or personal photos. Individuals can make collages on their own or within a group setting. Within a group, collages are discussed and explored using role-playing and supportive feedback. The individual creating the collage develops a powerful visual and written record of their life journey.

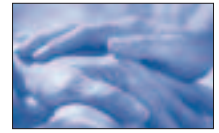

Soul Collage® training participants observe their final product – a collection of personal photos used during the grieving process.

Rook has used SoulCollage® to de-grief hospice and hospital staff, as a self-care activity for professionals, and in hospice bereavement work. She has used SoulCollage® for the past two years at Hospice of the Chesapeake's Wabanaki adult bereavement retreat and has held a monthly SoulCollage® bereavement group at Church of the Redeemer in Bowie since March 2006.

Until recently, trainings for people to become SoulCollage® facilitators occurred exclusively in California, where Seena Frost, the originator of the technique, lives. Hospice of the Chesapeake sponsored the first-ever SoulCollage® Facilitator Training on the East Coast in October 2007. The training accommodated 12 Hospice of the Chesapeake staff, as well as many community registrants from 13 states, the District of Columbia and Canada.

For more information about SoulCollage®, contact Roberta Rook at 301.499.4500 or rrook@hospicechesapeake.org. Please also visit www.soulcollage.com to learn more.
